Tackling the Basics

The Big Picture

Cataloging: “The process of creating entries for a catalog”

(ODLIS, http://www.abc-clio.com/ODLIS/odlis_c.aspx)

Cutter’s Objectives of the Catalog (1876)

- To enable a person to find a book when one of the following is known:
 - The author
 - The title
 - The subject
- To show what the library has
 - By a given author
 - On a given subject
 - In a given kind of literature
- To assist in the choice of a book
 - As to the edition (bibliographically)
 - As to its character (literary or topical)

The Big Picture

Why is it important to understand cataloging?

- Understanding cataloging helps you to understand your catalog
- Good cataloging ensures that materials will be used
- Good cataloging=Good library users
- You might have to create catalog records from scratch
- Not all records are created equal

construction	690.837
customs	392.36
home economics	643.1

see Manual at 363.5 vs. 643.1

A Few More DDC Pointers

Dewey numbers should never end in zero

513.10 should be 513.1

Dewey numbers follow patterns

784=North Dakota

» 978.4 917.84 370.9784 (all related to ND)

92=Biography

» 920 921 540.92 (all biographical)

Library of Congress and Dewey Decimal numbers do not correspond to one another

RC342 .E5 2009 (LC call number)

342 is not a corresponding Dewey number

A Few Thoughts on Book Numbers

693.997 Lac

- Only use the first word when determining the book number

Author is "St. John, Lisa" you would use ST not STJ

- The bibliographic record will tell you whether the book number should come from the author or title
